

Citizant Promotes Robert Lech to Vice President of Business Development, Civilian Agencies

Chantilly, Va., Nov. 30, 2010 — Citizant, a leader in enterprise architecture and business transformation services for the federal government, has promoted Robert Lech to vice president of business development, civilian agencies. Most recently, he was a division director for Citizant, where he was responsible for managing solutions programs within the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, U.S. Department of Justice, Securities and Exchange Commission and General Services Administration.

“We are thrilled to be able to have Robert step into this important role within our business development team,” said Raymond Roberts, CEO of Citizant. “His record of success in delivering quality results and adding value to our government customers has been a critical part of our continued growth. Also, his deep expertise and understanding of HUD and many other civilian agencies will be a great asset to our ability to identify and develop the best possible solutions for future customer needs.”

Lech has 15 years of experience in the IT industry and specializes in system analysis and design. Before becoming division director, Lech spent two years as a program manager at Citizant, managing a team responsible for migrating legacy applications to HUD’s target architecture, Java/J2EE/Oracle 10g. Other responsibilities during his career with the company included meeting project budgets and deliverable deadline requirements, and managing two task orders on a performance-based contract for HUD.

Prior to his career at Citizant, he served as CTO/COO at Aqua Resource Group Inc., a marketing and consulting company that supports the financial industry. There he was also responsible for project management, software development, product/service development, research and development, purchasing, and profit/loss analysis.

“I’ve been proud to be a part of the Citizant team and have the opportunity to serve such great customers,” said Lech. “I look forward to more opportunities to help government and civilian agencies get the technology and business transformation solutions they need to achieve their mission in a productive and cost-effective manner.”

Lech has a bachelor’s degree in computer information systems from California State Polytechnic University, Pomona.
