

Citizant Hires Jeffrey Beyer as Sr. VP of Operations

Leading executive brings 25 years of operations management and strategic planning experience

CHANTILLY, Va., Feb. 15, 2011 — Citizant, a leader in business transformation and information sharing solutions for the federal government, has hired Jeffrey Beyer as senior vice president of operations. Beyer will oversee all customer delivery and current account growth activities.

“Jeffrey has already proven that he can navigate the growth path that Citizant is following. He is exactly the right operations executive to round out Citizant’s senior leadership team,” said Raymond Roberts, CEO of Citizant. “His expertise and experience in operations management will help Citizant achieve its strategic goal of becoming a leading provider of government business transformation and technology solutions.”

Beyer will report to Mr. Roberts, and will join Greg Gorgone, senior vice president of Finance & Administration, and Paul Bize, senior vice president of Sales & Marketing, on the executive leadership team.

Beyer spent 22 years with Management Systems Designers, Inc. and served as MSD’s senior vice president and chief operating officer when Lockheed Martin purchased the 750-person company in 2007. After joining Lockheed Martin, Beyer served as the executive in charge of strategic planning for the Health Services and Solutions group. Most recently, Beyer was president of The Engle Group, a small government IT services contractor, where he was responsible for all finance, operations, business development, marketing, human resources and administrative affairs.

“I am thrilled to join Citizant’s outstanding team of professionals, who are revered in the Federal IT industry for their commitment to delivering innovative solutions and high-quality services,” said Beyer. “My focus will be on solidifying Citizant’s organic growth prospects and continue Citizant’s history of quality service delivery within the federal law enforcement and national security markets.”

Beyer studied psychology at George Mason University and has completed training courses in business management, strategic planning and programming.
